Source: PSRA 1937, KCA

Sub Group: Hip Roof Bungalow

Builder/Contractor: Not Identified

Description: This hip roof bungalow has an entry porch on the southern end of the main street façade that is sheltered by a trellis. An unequal pair of clipped gable roofs place emphasis on the entry. The remaining street façade is punctuated by a pair of wood-sash tripartite window six-over-one, a small square wood-sash window, and a pair of narrow wood-sash six-over-one windows near the northern side of the street façade. The house is sheathed with horizontal bevel siding and all roofs have eave returns. The house is missing a large wide chimney that was on the southern façade.

Cultural Data: Harold Eugene Peckenpaugh (1890-1961) was a building manager. In 1940, Mrs. Peckenpaugh entered a limerick in the Picklepuss Poem Contest, hoping for a chance to win a season's pass to baseball games at Sick's Stadium. The Peckenpaughs' daughter, Jeanne, was elected an honorary major in ROTC at Washington State College. After this, the house was occupied by the family of Herman L. Funk, who was a "retired timekeeper" for the Olympic Hotel.
