Description: This one-story side gable Craftsman bungalow has a recessed porch on its northern side supported on three square wood columns resting on brick masonry piers. The entry stairway retains its original brick masonry stair cheeks. A projecting gable roof bay with a wood-sash tripartite window with upper transom is located on the southern side of the street façade. The house is sheathed with cedar shingles and the eaves and bargeboards are supported by knee braces. The house was raised about 18 inches to accommodate basement use around 2013, but this was done in a subtle manner that retained the house's character.

Cultural Data: Fred F. Fuss (1888-1970) and his wife Elsie (d.1973), along with their son Fred H., lived at this address for over 50 years. Fred Sr. started off as a butcher; at the time of his death he was the retired owner of the Union Meat Market. After retiring as a meat merchant, Fred Sr. found a second career, this one with live animals: he took a job as trainer for Deep Roots and Storm Born, two horses owned by his son and stabled at Longacres Race Track, which was in operation from 1933-1992.
