Builder/Contractor: Not Identified

Description: This one-and-a-half-story Craftsman bungalow has a half-width entry porch on the eastern side sheltered by a roof extension. The gable extension is supported on two Tuscan columns resting on brick masonry piers. To the west of the entry is an original wood-sash double-hung tripartite window with upper divided lights. The main roof has a pair of small gable dormers, each with a pair of small horizontal windows. The house is sheathed with horizontal bevel siding and the eaves and bargeboards are supported by knee brackets. The rear gable roof was raised slightly in a recent remodel so that the roof slopes front to back are unequal.

Cultural Data: George S. Smith along with his wives Lucy (d. 1930) and then Jennie, led unusual and exciting lives, at least if one is to judge by Seattle Times articles. In 1936, Mrs. Smith lost $.35 in a crime spree on Naomi Pl.; in the same year, she fell into the lake at Denny Park and had to be revived; in 1940, the Smiths were awakened by a fire in their basement; and in 1955, Smith offered his services as a "swarm removal expert," as part of his volunteer work with the Puget Sound Beekeepers Association.
