Description: This one-story front gable Colonial Revival bungalow has a projecting arched roof entry porch on the northern side of the street façade supported on a pair of Tuscan columns. The southern side of the façade has five ganged original wood-sash four-over-one double-hung windows. Another original arched top wood-sash double-hung window is located in the gable face. The house is sheathed with horizontal bevel siding and the eaves and all roofs have eave returns.

Cultural Data: Edward L. Duquette (1899-?) was a traveling salesman. Frederick Crane Harper (1856-1936) and his wife Clorinda Y. (née Wells, 1860-1936) lived in this house in the early 1930s. Harper was Collector of Customs in Seattle from 1906-1915, and chairman of the Republican state committee in 1916. Harper was a Canadian immigrant; he entered the real estate business in Port Townsend and lived in East Sound in 1892, where he was elected state senator. He was a partner in Harper Barge & Lighterage Co. until his retirement in 1918. The town of Harper in Kitsap County is named for him.
