Description: This one-and-a-half-story front gable English Tudor inspired Craftsman bungalow originally had a full-width entry porch sheltered by the main roof overhang that was supported on four square wood-cased columns. Both sides of the porch have been glazed in, leaving the central entry doorway with its pair of non-original store doors recessed. The entry stairway no longer has its stair cheeks. The main roof gable end is half-timbered and has a wood-sash eight over-one tripartite double-hung window. with four of six-over-one wood sash double-hung windows. The house is sheathed with cedar shingles with stucco on the gable ends. The eaves and split bargeboards are supported by knee brackets.

Cultural Data: In a stunning confession, John E. Taylor, 21 years old, confessed in 1923 to being the burglar who had been robbing University of Washington fraternity houses for half a year, including his own fraternity. Taylor's stepfather, B. G. Campbell, was President of the Puget Timber Co. Taylor's tearful mother couldn't make sense of the arrest: "He always has had everything he wanted," said she.
