Description: This one-and-a-half-story side gable Craftsman bungalow has a projecting gable roof entry porch on the northern side of the house that is supported on two squat square tapered wood-cased columns resting on brick masonry piers. The entry porch is partially recessed. The main floor has a central original tripartite wood-sash window with upper transom flanked by two narrow wood-sash windows. The main roof has a gable roof vent located a little south of the entry porch roof, and a small front gable second level aeroplane section located near the southern side of the house. The house is sheathed with cedar shingles and the eaves and bargeboards are supported by corbels. Similar to 2206 NE 63rd Street.

Cultural Data: Effie Mack (1868-1945) was the widow of William H. Mack (1861-ca. 1910) a house carpenter. Hugo Ringstrom (1890-1978), a chemist, was born in Minnesota to a Swedish farming family who had immigrated to the U.S. in 1887. By 1930, Hugo and his wife Katherine (1902-1952) and their two daughters, Adelle and Lois, had joined the rapidly expanding population of Scandinavians who had settled in the Seattle area. Katherine was active in University Christian Church, and her daughter Adelle followed in her footsteps, becoming appointed a delegate in the United Student Christian Council in Geneva, Switzerland while still a freshman at the University of Washington.
